This overbuilding on the beach needs to be stopped. The traffic situation is out of control. This overbuilding will drive people away not to it. It is already too frustrating and in an emergency I don't know what would happen to get all the traffic over the 2 bridges in the area. Besides the fact that the beaches are eroding

Yes. Beaches in Pompano Beach and throughout Broward County are classified as "critically eroding" due to a combination of climate change impacts—such as sea-level rise and extreme storm surges—and human interventions like rapid coastal development and hardened shoreline structures. [1, 2]
