Annie Gillis Park Urban Plaza Narrative:

Annie Adderly Gillis Park is an existing park located at 601 Dr. Martin Luther King Boulevard, Pompano Beach, Florida on a 0.83-acre site.

The goal of this project is to beautify and improve the functionality of the existing park to better serve its community by redesigning the entire park layout.

The overarching design concept is to provide a layout that is flexible for the implementation of new features as the community's needs and wants evolve in the future.

The improvements include decorative interconnected concrete walkway, landscape, shade structures, sidewalks, and exercise equipment. The layout also includes a location for an annual Christmastree display to continue the park's tradition.

The design of the park also focuses on the security of the user by providing adequate lighting and the implementation of CPTED principals.

As illustrated in the renderings, the upgraded Annie Adderly Gillis Park will enhance the user experience and elevate the aesthetic of the neighborhood at a very prominent intersection.
