I approached him and to let him know he wasn't allowed on the property. He told me that he was only charging his phone for a few minutes, he's not breaking any law and he won't be moving and that I could contact the police if I wanted. I previously contacted the police a few weeks ago for the same similar reason and I was told by one of the officers that because there are no signs posted that say they are trespassing. As long he is not sitting on the business tables during business hours there's absolutely nothing, they can do about it.

For now everything is secured he left the property.
